B

Led by Bennett Principals Edward Parra, Shemali Samaraweera and Michael Nas, our defence, aerospace and technology team offers tailored legal and strategic advice to the WA defence industry, with significant experience in defence contracting and legal issues arising from the unique technological advances constantly evolving in these sectors.

Defence

We have a detailed understanding of, and exposure to, all existing and planned defence projects unfolding in Western Australia and South Australia for the Royal Australian Navy. The unique nature of these projects, and the secure environment in which they necessarily operate, requires a creative and innovative legal approach.

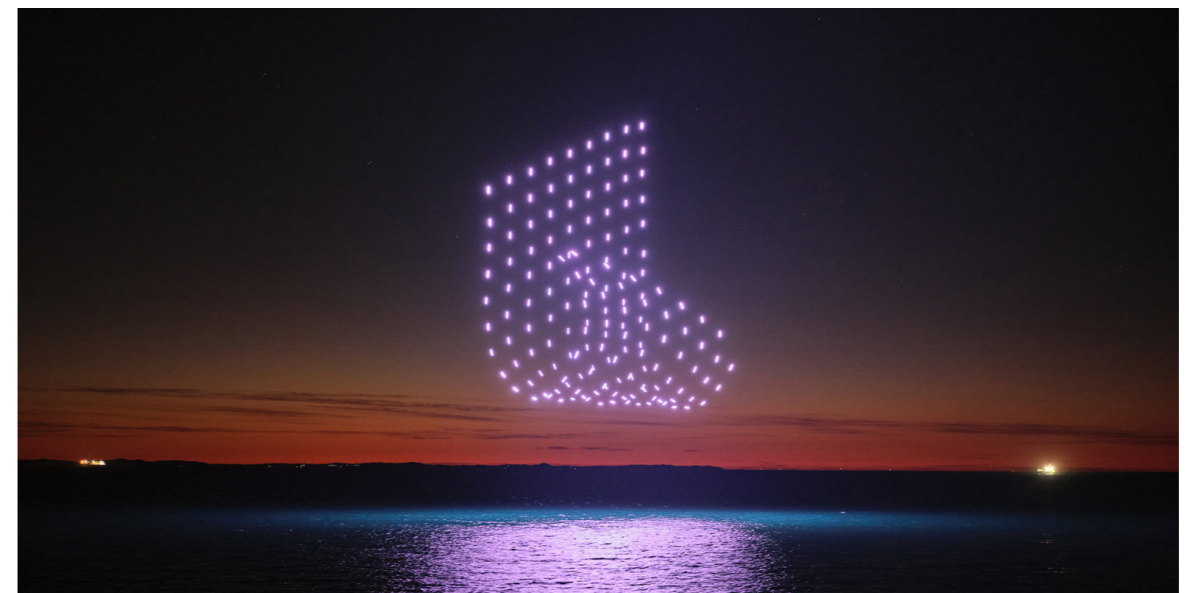

Our broad network in the defence industry across Australia includes key players at prime, SME and State and Federal government level. In addition to general legal work for the defence industry, we offer expertise in the area of defence contracting based around the ASDEFCON suite, at both prime and subcontractor level.

Bennett also has extensive expertise advising and representing clients in the defence industry on disputes arising from defence projects and ASDEFCON contracts. In particular, Bennett has experience in matters involving the designation of a project as a project of concern and remediation strategies, scope reduction claims, delay and postponement claims, contract change proposals, ownership of intellectual property, change of ownership, information and disclosure requirements and acceptance.

Similarly, we are active in the aerospace (and remotely piloted aircraft or 'drone') sector and regularly advise on commercial and regulatory matters. We have been recognised for our long-term leadership in relation to the Australian drone industry. The firm was also a finalist in Aviation/Aerospace Australia's Excellence in Innovation (SME) award for 2024. The firm is also a corporate member of both the Henderson Alliance, AIDN and Aviation/Aerospace Australia.

In 2021, the firm assisted a drone operator in commercial work enabling WA's first large-scale drone light show for Ilona McGuire's "Moombaki", the flagship work as part of the Crossing 2021 edition of the Fremantle Biennale. The light show featured a fleet of 160 choreographed drones, accompanied by a rich soundscape, telling the stories of Whadjuk Nyoongar Country and its Traditional Owners. The drone fleet took part in a series of performances over 8 nights in 3 locations over the ocean and waterways of Perth. Subsequently, as part of First Lights, the team have worked across Australia and internationally facilitating works of this type.

Corporate and Commercial

Our corporate and commercial team regularly assists clients operating across the defence, aerospace and technology sectors with M&A, equity investments, FIRB issues, joint ventures, strategic alliances, business structuring, commercial contracts and regulatory compliance.

We work with clients from early-stage technology businesses through to established defence and aerospace participants, and have substantial experience advising on transactions and arrangements which support participation in defence supply chains and protect long-term strategic value.

Technology

From the early stage of start-ups, to established business working on novel technological applications, the development of innovative technologies and systems is innate to our defence and aerospace clients.

In addition to advising clients on the defence and aerospace regulatory environment, we work closely with clients and industry bodies to advocate for regulatory reform and educate these sectors on emerging issues affecting the development of new technologies.
